ELEPHANT CONSERVATION
CHALLENGES AND EFFORTS

Dr. Ritesh Joshi and Kanchan Puri

Asian elephants are listed as "endangered" on the international Union for Conservation of Nature (IUCN) Red List of threatened species. India has the largest number of wild Asian Elephants, estimated at 28,964 according to 2017 census by Project Elephant, i.e. about 60% of the species' global population. Indian Elephant is declared as National Heritage Animal (Schedule I of the Wildlife (Protection) Act, 1972) and has also been listed in the Appendix I of the Convention of the Migratory Species. It is widely acknowledged that ecological role of wildlife species greatly influences ecosystems. Even from a tourism perspective alone, presence of wildlife gives a further boost to the tourism industry. Elephants are one of the most iconic and stereotype species in forests, who play a crucial role in maintaining forest ecosystem and biodiversity. Several species are associated with elephants to fulfill their routine life requirements.

Elephants perform different activities in forests, which facilitates the interaction of other animals with their ecosystem. Movement of elephants over large landscapes and wide range of habitats also helps the territorial animals in interacting with other living communities. World Elephant Day (August 12) underlines the importance of the protection of the world’s elephants, and to create awareness on elephant conservation. It reminds the general public as well as various stakeholders to help protect elephants, preventing illegal poaching, conserving elephant habitats etc.

ROLE OF ELEPHANTS IN FOREST ECOSYSTEM

Elephants are intelligent and highly social animals and their capability to respond to the changing environment makes them less vulnerable. They are known for their large migrations across myriad types of landscapes. An adult elephant needs more than 100 kilograms of food every day, which range from grasses to barns, fruits and bulbs. Availability of large migratory corridors help the elephants to move across larger landscapes and breed conveniently, ensuring their long-term survival. However, the population of this giant animal remains fragmented because of the conversion of natural habitats into agricultural fields, industrial areas and human habitations. Elephants play a

CAREER AS ASSISTANT ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICER IN PUBLIC SECTOR INSURANCE COMPANIES

Arti S

A country's economy comprises various components or sectors, one of which is BFSI (Banking, Financial Services, and Insurance). BFSI extensively contribute in keeping an economy going and at the same time offer large number of employment opportunities.

In India, services sector is moving faster than the manufacturing sector. Insurance is a part of the services sector. While in past few years banking has reached far and wide, insurance has still to cover a long distance. It is said that India is an underinsured country, which simply means that penetration of insurance is at a less than desired level and has to extend to more people, households, businesses and activities. The available data shows that the penetration level of insurance is just 3.76% (life insurance at 2.62% and non-life insurance at 0.94%). As of now, the overall market size of India’s insurance sector is near Rs. 21 lakh crore. Amid COVID-19 surge, demand for health insurance increased by 41%.

As financial awareness increases and incomes grow, demand for insurance products will go higher. A number of steps have been taken in our country to boost the insurance business. In the Union Budget 2021, FDI (Foreign Direct Investment) limit in insurance sector has been increased from 49% to 74%. A fund of Rs. 16,000 crore for crop insurance has also been allocated under the budget. An insurance coverage was introduced in February 2020 to cover healthcare workers for the next one year. Along with this, the Finance Ministry has announced to infuse Rs. 3000 crore in government general insurance companies to improve their financial health.

India has 57 insurance companies of which 24 are in the life insurance business and 34 are in non-life insurance business. Life insurance covers death whereas general insurance comprises cover for household (theft, burglary, etc.), motor vehicle, health and travel insurance, among others. As far as public sector companies in the insurance business are concerned, Life Insurance Corporation (LIC) of India is the sole company offering life insurance and it is going to issue its equity shares to the public in the coming months. Khagendramani Pradhan
Helen Lepcha was perhaps the only woman freedom fighter belonging to Sikkim, the erstwhile princely kingdom. Born in the year 1902 as the third child of Achung Lepcha in Sangmoon near Assamthang, South Sikkim her family had migrated to Kuruseong in West Bengal in search of better avenues for education and employment. Helen Lepcha found her calling during the flood of Bihar in 1920, where her dedicated service in relief work was brought to the notice of Mahatma Gandhi, who not only met and praised her, but also invited her to visit Sabarmati Ashram.

On her visit to Sabarmati Ashram, Gandhiji felt that her name did not suit the spirit of the movement and hence rechristened her Sabitri Devi, the name that resonated thereafter throughout the freedom movement in Bengal and Bihar province. With a greater responsibility assigned to work in the coalfield areas of Bihar and Uttar Pradesh, Helen alias Sabitri Devi soon rose to win the heart and acceptance of the masses. Her skill and courtesy, and the masses. The colonial rulers could not ignore and started strictly monitoring her activities. During the peak of Non-Cooperation movement, Sabitri Devi led a huge rally comprising thousands of laborers from the Ahra coalfield in the year 1921 at the famous Mohammed Ali Park at Calcutta, which had the presence of eminent freedom fighters like Mahatma Gandhi, Chittaranjan Das, Maulana Abul Kalam Azad and many others. This not only established her as a mass leader, but also brought her closer to prominent leaders of the freedom struggle and was assigned with further responsibilities.

Even though Sabitri Devi had to return back home during the intervening period due to deteriorating health of her mother, she could not distance herself from the freedom movement and the growing resistance to foreign goods under the call from Mahatma Gandhi. Soon, she started a door to door campaign against foreign goods with the help of few Gorkha Volunteers in the adjoining areas of Siliguri of Bengal. Foreign goods were collected and huge bonfires lit in public places inviting the wrath of British administration.

Sabitri Devi was also associated with Nalbari Subhash Chandra Bose. During his escape arrest at Giddedh Pahan near Kuruseong in the year 1930-40, it was through the secret messages concealed in bread from Ishan Ahmed’s bakery, whose owner happened to be Sabitri Devi’s husband, that Netaji’s escape plan to Europe was formulated. She had personally supervised to disguise him as a Pathan with beard and moustache and made his escape possible.

In appreciation of her dedication and immense contribution to the freedom movement, the Government of India in the year 1972 honored her with a citation, a “Tamra Patra.” Among many of the unsung heroes of freedom movement, the contribution of Sabitri Devi will always remain revered and respected in the epoch struggle for independence of the Democratic Republic of India. Sabitri Devi remained true to her belief and conviction all her life religiously following the ideals of Mahatma Gandhi. She left the mortal world on 18th August, 1980.

ELEPHANT CONSERVATION...

major role in restructing forest ecosystem and biodiversity. They have cascading effects in altering the vegetation regeneration in forests, providing habitat, water and nutrients to other animals.

Elephants as Seed Dispersers

Elephants are one of the crucial species that disperse the seeds of trees. Since a mature elephant consumes nearly 100 kilograms of food every day, the large volume of faecal intake by the elephants allow them to disperse large numbers of seeds. Elephants aid in the dispersal and subsequent germination of seeds, by their fruit-eating habits, passing through the elephant's gut helps break the dormancy of seeds and speeds up their germination.

Elephants as Habitat Providers

Terrestrial mammals regularly use trails inside the forests, generally prepared by the elephants. Interestingly, other wild animals also use these trails during their routine activities. As the dung of elephant comprises seeds and nutrients, the movement of elephants across the open and degraded forests helps in regeneration of vegetation, which in turn alters the wilderness of the ecosystem. Such movements of elephants are helpful in maintaining forest trails.

Elephants as Water Providers

Elephants can sense the underground water sources. They dig holes in potential dry river-beds using their forefeet and trunk, especially during summer to drink fresh water. By nature, elephants do not prefer drinking dirty water. These small water points are later utilized by the small animals like spotted deer, sambar deer, small Indian mongoose, Asiatich jackal, small Indian civet, wild boar, etc. Besides some birds including peacock, parakeet, pigeon and jungle fowl also utilize such water sources to drink and bathe. Such behaviours of elephants facilitate establishing of associations with other animals, especially during harsh conditions. All these functions performed by the elephant can influence the distribution of animals as well, which may affect the population dynamics of wildlife.

Elephants as Ecotourism Promoters

In India, wildlife tourism is increasing mainly because of the presence of rare species like Bengal tigers, Asian elephants, Asian one horned rhinoceros, Asian lions, Nilgiri tahr and marten and red pandas. Further presence of bird species and arrival of winter migratory birds attract tourists. Unique landscapes and frequent sighting of wild animals form major tourist attractions during wildlife expedition. Elephant in Indian forests is a magnificent species which plays a vibrant role in increasing tourist footfall.

Elephants as Indicator Species

For centuries, it has been considered that animals have a sixth sense, as they have some senses more developed than those of human beings. It is said that animals can sense changes in the environment and are capable of sensing and predicting natural calamities before they occur. Human beings are able to hear sounds that are in the range of 20 hertz to 20,000 kilohertz, and cannot detect any sound beyond this range. However, some animals transcend this range and can sense those sounds.

Two cow elephants along with one baby climbing up a hillock through a narrow passage. Such movements of elephants are helpful in maintaining forest trails.

Various wildlife experts pointed out that animals have intense hearing abilities which make them capable of feeling the earth’s vibration before the human beings.

O’Connell-Rodwell, a renowned wildlife expert in the Stanford University, has given a detailed insight on elephant communication, which reveal that elephants communicate over long distances using low-pitched sounds that are barely audible to human beings. Nearly two decades ago, her studies indicated new direction by proposing that low-frequency calls also generate powerful vibrations in the ground-seismic signals that elephants can feel, and even interpret, via their sensitive trunks and feet. Earlier it was known that seismic communication is common in small animals, including spiders, scorpions, insects and a few vertebrate species, such as white-tipped frogs, kangaroo rats and golden moles. During the tsunami, she recorded that trained elephants in Thailand were agitated and fled to higher grounds before the devastating wave struck, thus saving their own lives and those of the tourists riding on their backs.

Challenges and Conservation efforts

The challenges for Asian elephant’s conservation are - habitat loss and fragmentation, human-elephant conflict, poaching and illegal trade of elephant parts. In order to provide financial and technical support for management of wild Asian elephants, the Ministry of Environment, Forest and Climate Change (MoEFCC), launched ‘Project Elephant’ in 1992. The project aims at assuring long-term survival of viable populations of elephants in their natural habitats by protecting the elephants, their habitats and migration corridors.

For management of train-elephant collisions, measures are being taken by Zonal Railways in coordination with MoEFCC which include:

- Imposition of permanent and temporary speed restrictions in identified elephant corridors.

- Provision of signage board to warn loco pilots about identified elephant corridors.

- Sensitization of train crew and Station Masters on a regular basis.

- Need based clearance of vegetation on the sides of track within railway land.

- Construction of underpasses and ramps for movement of elephants at identified locations.

- Installation of Honey Bee sound system to dissuade elephants from coming near the tracks.

- Provision of fencing at isolated locations both by Railway and Forest Department.

- Deputing Forest Department staff in Railway control offices to liaise with Railway and engagement of elephant trackers by Forest Department for timely action by alerting Station Masters and Loco Pilots.

- Frequent coordination meetings between State Forest Department and Railway Department.

Further, Best Practices of human-elephant Conflict Management in India published by MoEFCC 2020, compiles all the management strategies adopted by State Forest Departments for mitigation of human-elephant Conflicts. Recently, the Ministry also launched national portal on human elephant conflict called “Surakshya” for collection of real time information. At present, the beta version is available for data testing. It will help to set the data collection protocols and to enable policy formulation along with preparation of action plans for mitigation of conflicts. Protected area managers of different elephant ranges along with the frontline wildlife staff could develop a rigorous framework. Since elephants play an important role in the entire ecosystem functions, restoration of large fragmented forest stretches and corridors for elephant migration and habitat management are of paramount importance. Moreover, local community and stakeholder’s participation in conservation initiatives and habitat monitoring would be an effective management and conservation strategy.

EN 25/57
CAREER AS ASSISTANT ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICER

Assistant Administrative Officer (AAO) is the entry level officers’ position in the public sector life and general insurance companies. It is similar to probationary officers' position in public sector banks.

For recruitment to probationary officers' position, a common selection process is conducted. However, in case of insurance companies, each company conducts its own examination with more or less a similar pattern. Assistant Administrative Officer is a generalist position in insurance organizations. These companies also recruit officers in specialist categories like finance, marketing, actuarial science, law, official language etc.

Specialist categories require specialized qualification from the related field. But for generalists' positions, graduates or postgraduates (with prescribed percentage of marks) from all disciplines can apply.

The job of an AAO with public sector insurers offers good pay, excellent facilities and adequate growth opportunities. Application process is now online like in case of most of the recruitments in public sector companies. Eligible candidates on successful submission of application are required to first appear in the preliminary examination, which will have three sections comprising English language, reasoning ability, and quantitative aptitude. Each segment will have a time of 20 minutes with 30 marks for English language and 35 marks each for reasoning ability and quantitative aptitude.

Thus, this examination, comprising objective type questions, has to be attempted in a period of one hour. Candidates, based on their ranking in preliminary examination, shall be called for the main examination which is divided into two segments. The first segment is of objective type questions divided into reasoning, English language, general awareness, and quantitative aptitude. There are fifty marks each for these sections totaling 200 marks. Combined time for this objective part is 150 minutes in which 30 minutes can be ideally taken for general awareness and 40 minutes each for the remaining three sections.

English Language:
The English test language is designed to check the candidate's ability to comprehend, make correct use of terms, finding mistakes in sentences. Having a rich vocabulary helps. In comprehension, the questions may relate to rules, agreement/disagreement statements, paraphrasing the given line or statement including synonyms/antonyms. Reading the passage attentively to understand key points of the passage is necessary. To excel in the English language section, reading newspaper editorials may help. A book on General English or 101/121 standard may work as a guide. In addition to working on vocabulary, you should have clear concepts of parts of speech, nouns, verbs, and articles.

Reasoning Ability: In this section, you will find questions on analytical reasoning and logical reasoning. Analytical reasoning questions are designed to assess your ability to consider a group of facts and rules, and, given those facts and rules, determine what could or must be true. You might then be asked to answer questions about the implications of the rules as they apply to the particular scenario. Under logical reasoning, candidate has to logically work through concepts and problems expressed in the form of images, diagrams, etc. It evaluates the ability to extract and work with the meaning, information, and implications from the given images or diagrams. Expect questions from syllogism, input-output, sense of direction, blood relations, logical inequalities and ranking, etc. and of course puzzle based questions. Extra care is needed in reading questions of reasoning ability.

General Awareness: Like any general awareness paper, the canvas is larger here. Questions will be asked from recent events in the world and the area from which the banks, financing, insurance, political system, economy, culture, history, technology, sports and tourism, etc. Banking, general science, and general knowledge may also be covered. The focus will be mainly on current affairs of national and international news; important dates and days have to be remembered. Remembering names of well-known and recently published books and their authors, states/nations’ cultural, and capital will help. Reading national newspapers on a daily basis is required for keeping your knowledge up to date to do well in this section.

Also, you should refer to business newspapers/magazines and a general knowledge guide.

Quantitative Aptitude: The questions under quantitative aptitude section will be dealing with numbers. A few questions may be graph-based in which candidates will be asked to find answers related to comparative performance or situation. For example, in which year the percentage of profit is more than the average of which two years’ performance is higher than performance in another year. There would be few mathematical calculations combining multiple operations. Other questions may relate to area, perimeter, series, quadratic equations, square root, ratio, proportions, mixture, time and work, time, speed and distance, probability, etc. sharing of loss/profit in partnership. A 10th standard book on mathematics can be the base of your preparation. You should remember the important formulae and be clear about BODMAS.

Subjective Test: In the main examination, the objective test is followed by a subjective paper of 30 minutes duration in which the candidate has to write an essay on the given topics. The minimum qualifying mark is 15 in which some concession is given to prescribed categories of candidates. Though candidates have to qualify in the objective test, its marks are not added in preparing the merit list of candidates to be called for interview. Unless one is fully prepared, it would be difficult to produce a good output of essay and letter. The topic of the essay may relate to a general, social or economic issue. Usually, two topics are given for essay of which one has to be chosen. In case of letters, there can be a choice between formal or informal letter. Not only you have to write correct English, content too should speak for itself. Go through sample essays and letters to understand the basic principles and structure to be kept in mind while writing the letter. Also you need to be good in typing on computer as you will be required to type and submit your essay and letter on the computer provided to you. Doing well in this section will be instrumental in making you qualify for the interview.

Interview: Interview for the position of AAO is comprehensive and needs serious preparation. Even though you may be a fresher or inexperienced in insurance business, you may be asked generic questions relating to basics of insurance and insurance scenario in the country. Questions common to most of the interviews like ‘tell us something about yourself’, ‘describe your strengths and weaknesses’, ‘why should you be selected?’ may be put forth. Avoid giving routine answers, be modest and honest. Enough guidance is available for doing well in interviews which you may use to your advantage.

Managing time during the test

Not only your knowledge, your time management skills too will play a crucial role in qualifying in both preliminary and main examination. At every stage in solving the test, you have to find how you may save time without compromising with finding the correct answer. You have to read the questions fast without missing any relevant point. You have to train your eyes to move faster over the screen. Also, avoid any time lag between deciding the answer and clicking the related option. You should be in all readiness to start the test the moment you get an indication for this. Moving from one question to the next should take least possible time. The test is designed in a way to create pressure on the candidates to solve large number of questions in lesser time. Do not consider this pressure to be negative. Use this pressure to demonstrate your efficiency and preparedness.

Those who qualify the objective test are not necessarily the ones who attempted all the questions but the ones who correctly answered maximum number of questions.

Level of competition

As the entry barrier is low, the competition is high as large number of candidates compete for limited number of positions. But here, generally at least there are a few hundred vacancies which keeps one in good stead than when there are 5-10 or even lesser vacancies. To get finally selected you have to come first qualitatively in the preliminary examination. For main examination, candidates about 15 times of the number of vacancies are called. You have to be in this list for the further process. After qualifying in the main examination, your chances for success usually become one in 3 or 4 based on the number of candidates called for interview in relation to vacancies.

Practice, practice and practice

Diligent practice should pave the way for your success in the AAO examination. Understanding the test pattern is not difficult as it is similar to many other examinations as that of a probationary officer or management trainee. More important is to master the tests and the best way to do this is to practice as much as you can. There are guides for each segment of the test which contain hints to tackle questions, solved examples and sample papers to be solved. Also, work books can be found containing test questions. There are many online coaching providers for such examinations. Though they charge a fee for joining the courses, in many cases sample questions/papers and mock tests can be freely accessed from their websites. Exclusive preparation guides for AAO examination can also be found in offline and online market.

To know about insurance business, insurance education and insurance regulations, you may visit the websites of above insurance companies and that of Insurance Institute of India and Insurance Regulatory and Development Authority of India (IRDIA) which is the insurance regulator in our country.

Views expressed are personal
The United Nations was created in 1945, following the devastation of the Second World War, with one central mission: the maintenance of international peace and security. The UN accomplishes this by working to prevent conflict, helping parties in conflict make peace, deploying peacekeepers and creating the conditions to allow peace to hold and flourish. These activities often overlap and should reinforce one another, to be effective. To mark this sentiment and mission, the International Day of Peace (“Peace Day”) is observed around the world each year on September 21.

What is the International Day of Peace?

Established in 1981 by unanimous United Nations resolution 35/37, the General Assembly has declared this a day devoted to “communicating and strengthening the ideals of peace both within and among all nations and peoples.” Two decades later, in 2001, the General Assembly unanimously voted to designate the Day (September 21) as a period of non-violence and ceasefire. On the Day, the United Nations encourages all nations and people to honour a cessation of hostilities, and to otherwise commemorate the Day through education and public awareness on issues related to peace.

Within the United Nations, peacebuilding refers to efforts to assist countries and regions in their transitions from war to peace and to reduce a country’s risk of lapsing or relapsing into conflict by strengthening national capacities for conflict management, and laying the foundations for sustainable peace and development. Building lasting peace in war-torn societies is a daunting challenge for global peace and security. Peacebuilding requires sustained international support for national efforts across the broadest range of activities. For instance, peacebuilders monitor ceasefires, demobilize and reintegrate combatants, assist the return of refugees and displaced persons, help to organize and monitor elections of a new government, support justice and security sector reforms, enhance human rights protections, and foster reconciliation after past atrocities.

The International Day of Peace:

1. Reaffirms the contribution that its observance and celebration make in strengthening the ideals of peace and alleviating tensions and causes of conflict
2. Considers the unique opportunity it offers for a cessation of violence and conflict throughout the world.

Desires to draw attention to the objectives of the Day.

What is this year’s theme?

The 2021 theme for the International Day of Peace is “Recovering Better for an Equitable and Sustainable World”. The Day this year celebrates the power of global solidarity for building a peaceful and sustainable world. This is the Decade of Action that calls for accelerating sustainable solutions to the world’s biggest challenges—ranging from poverty and gender inequality, climate change, marginalisation, and closing the finance gap. The focus is to be on “recovering better for a more equitable and peaceful world, to celebrate peace by standing up against acts of hate online and offline, and by spreading compassion, kindness, and hope in the face of the pandemic.”

This year is particularly significant as it is the 20th Anniversary of the UN Resolution on the Programme of Action on a Culture of Peace. As the UN says, the pandemic is known for hitting the underprivileged and marginalized groups the hardest. People caught in conflict are especially vulnerable in terms of lack of access to healthcare. “The pandemic has been accompanied by a surge in stigma, discrimination, and hatred...the virus attacks us all without caring about where we are from or what we believe. Confronting this common enemy of humankind, we must be reminded that we are not each other’s enemy. To be able to recover from the devastation of the pandemic, we must make peace with one another. And we must make peace with nature. Despite the travel restrictions and economic shutdowns, climate change is not on pause. In the poorest and least-
